

Halter/bridle combination for trail riding

This bridle based on European military design whereby bit has separate headstall that allows easy bridling of horse without disturbing halter. Bit headstall buttons into browband for security, but yet is easily removed.

Each of these pictures shows separate halter unit (left) and detached headstall with bit (right).

Upper pictures show complete halter bridle set-up and headstall partially removed from halter. Tab on brow is unbuttoned for this operation.

This may be fitted with western style conchos and thongs or simple loop back rosettes as is customary on harness or military bridles.

All hardware is stainless steel for greatest strength.
